HEIR TO AUSTRIAN THRONE AND HIS WIFE ASSASSINATED BY YOUNG STUDENT

First Attempt to Kill Them With a Bomb Not Successful

WERE SLAIN BY REVOLVER SHOTS

Going to Hospital to Ask About Aides Injured by Bomb

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Sarajevo, Bosnia, June 28.—Archduke Francis Ferdinand, heir to the Austrian-Hungarian throne, and the Princess of Hohenberg, his morganatic wife, were shot dead in the main street of the Bosnian capital by a student to-day, Gavrilo Princip, while they were making an apparently triumphant progress through the city on their annual visit to the annexed provinces of Bosnia and Herzegovina.

The Archduke was hit full in the face and the Princess was shot through the abdomen and throat. Their wounds proved mortal within a few minutes after reaching the palace, to which they were hurried with all speed. Those responsible for the assassination took care that it should prove effective, as there were two assailants, the first armed with a bomb, and the latter with a revolver. The bomb was thrown at the Royal automobile as it was proceeding to the Town Hall, where a reception was to be held, but the Archduke saw the deadly missile coming and warded it off with his arm. It fell outside the car and exploded, slightly wounding two aides de camp in a second car, and half a dozen spectators.

It was on the return of the procession that the tragedy was added to the long list of those that have darkened the pages of the recent history of the Hapsburgs. As the Royal automobile reached a prominent point in the route to the palace, an eighth grade student, Gavrilo Princip, sprang out of the crowd and poured a fusillade of bullets from an automatic pistol at the Archduke and the Princess. Both fell mortally wounded. Princip and a fellow-conspirator, a compositor from Trosbinje named Gabrinovic, barely escaped lynching by the infuriated spectators, and were finally seized by the police, who afforded him protection. Both men are natives of the annexed province of Herzegovina.

The first attempt against the Archduke occurred just outside the Girls' High School. The Archduke's car had restarted after a brief pause for an inspection of the building, when Gabrinovic hurled the bomb. This was so successfully warded off by the Archduke that it fell directly beneath the following car, the occupants of which, Count von Boos-Waldeck and Colonel Merizzo, were struck by shrapnel of iron.

Archduke's Bitter Protest.

Archduke Francis Ferdinand stopped his car and, making inquiries as to their injuries and lending what aid he could, continued his journey to the Town Hall. There the Burgomaster began the customary address, but the Archduke sharply interrupted and snapped out: "Herr Burgomaster, we have come here to pay you a visit and bombs have been thrown at us. This is altogether an amazing indignity."

After a pause, the Archduke said: "Now, you may speak."

On leaving the hall, the Archduke and his wife announced their intention of visiting the wounded members of their suite at the hospital on their way back to the palace. They were actually bound on their mission of mercy, when at the corner of Rudolfstrasse and Franz Josefstrasse, Princip opened his deadly fusillade.

A bullet struck the Archduke in the face. The Princess was wounded in the abdomen and another bullet struck her in the throat, severing an artery. She fell unconscious across her husband's knee. At the same moment the Archduke sank to the floor of the car.

THE SCENE OF THE TRAGEDY

Sarajevo, or Bosnia-Serai, capital of Bosnia, where the Archduke Francis Ferdinand and his wife were assassinated, is beautifully situated on both sides of the river Miljacka, 122 miles southwest of Belgrade.

The principal edifices are the Roman Catholic Cathedral, Town Hall, sixteenth century mosque of Hasref Bey, Governor's residence and museum, containing a collection of antiquities. There are ruins of a medieval castle built by Hungarians. The place has been recently modernized under Austro-Hungarian rule, and is a flourishing trade centre with railroad connections. It has manufacturers of tobacco and metal wares, and some textile establishments. The population is about 55,000 to 60,000.

HEIR IS ELDEST SON OF ARCHDUKE OTTO

HE IS ALSO A NEPHEW OF THE ARCHDUKE WHO WAS MURDERED.

The Archduke Charles Francis Joseph is now next in succession to the Austrian Throne. He is the eldest son of the Archduke Otto, who was the younger brother of Archduke Francis Ferdinand. Archduke Otto was born at Graz in 1865, and died in Vienna in 1906. He was married at Dresden in 1886 to Maria Josepha, Princess of Saxony, who is still living at Vienna. The only children of the marriage are the Archdukes Charles Francis Joseph and Maximilian Eugen Ludwig, the latter of whom is nineteen years old and a student of law.

Charles Francis Joseph was born at Posenberg on August 17, 1887. He attended the Vienna public schools, and was educated at the University of Vienna. He is a member of the Imperial Austrian Infantry and holds honorary commissions in the 11th Prussian Hussars, the 1st Saxon Uhlans and the 13th Bavarian Infantry. Among the honours of which he is a member are those of the Golden Fleece, the Black Eagle and St. Hubert. His wife was the Princess Zita of the Bourbon House of Parma. The Duchy was made a part of the Kingdom of Italy after the war of 1859, and since that time the principal residence of the family has been at the Castle of Schwarzau, not far from Vienna. It was here that the Princess was married October 21, 1911.

Her Bows Are Badly Damaged and She is Taking in Water Through Two Holes—Gunboats Are on the Way to Give Her Assistance.

London, June 28.—The California's bows are badly damaged, and she is taking in water through two holes. It is reported that the passengers destined for points in Ireland already have been transferred from the vessel and are expected to reach Londonderry at noon to-morrow.

The Anchor Line steamer California sailed from New York June 20 for Moville and Glasgow. On board the vessel were 121 cabin and over 300 second class passengers.

PRINCE WINS GLORY IN THE SHAMFIGHT

Shows Himself to be a Scout of Great Alertness

Marches Many Miles and Finds Out as Much About the Position of the Enemy as He Could in an Aeroplane.

(Special Cable Despatch to The Globe.) London, June 28.—The Prince of Wales won a slice of glory yesterday in the annual sham fight between the infantry troops of Oxford and Cambridge. The duel took place near Aldershot where, with the advantages of entrenchments added to a naturally strong defensive position, the Cantabs should have held the Oxford warriors at bay. This they would probably have done but for the activity of the Prince and the scouts under him.

The Prince received orders in the scout district between the Oxford concentrations and the light blue trenches. He and his men kept up a constant trot for miles, and were able to bring their advance guard to a position so advantageous that had the light continued Oxford could have followed the Napoleonic dictum of destroying its opponent in detail.

He discovered a cycle patrol from Cambridge, sent him back with information to his captain, and then sprang ahead again with such rapidity that in half an hour he knew as much about the Cambridge defenses as he would have done if he had observed them from an aeroplane.

Plays Game Fairly. The army training manual lays it down that a scout's first duty is to obtain all the information he can from the people of the country, and this regulation the Prince carried out to the letter. Cabmen, cyclists, railway porters and pedestrians were all interrogated. One man in an endeavor to make the directions as explicit as possible, seized the Prince by the collar of his tunic and twisted him around as he pointed out the way. The Prince always plays the game in a mimic conflict. One of his scouts, recognizing a pressman who had the schemes of both Oxford and Cambridge in his possession, suggested that he should be taken prisoner and deprived of his documents, but the Prince would have none of it. "You leave him alone and come on," he said, then he rushed on across the hills.

PENNY-A-WEEK LODGINGS. London, June 28.—Lodgings at a penny a week are offered to the poor of Midhurst, in Sussex, by the Rev. F. Tatchell, vicar of the parish. He has turned an old village over to this purpose. The penny a week secures a bed sitting-room in cases of genuine poverty.

SWIMMER IS DROWNED. Port Stanley, June 28.—This afternoon about 3 o'clock, Joe Arden, a St. Thomas man, was bathing at the Pere Marquette bridge in this village. He swam out to the centre of the creek and suddenly disappeared. The body was recovered in about an hour, but resuscitation efforts proved fruitless. An inquest will be held.

Convention Prays for Bar's Abolition (Special Despatch to The Globe.) VALPARAISO, Ind., June 28.—At the National Sunday school convention to-day proceedings were stayed while an audience of several thousand rose as a prayer was offered for the success of the Ontario temperance vote.

Manitoba's Appeal

The Globe yesterday received the following from Winnipeg: "Men of Ontario, the opportunity of your history lies at your hand; the opportunity to give the Dominion, yes, and the Empire, a vision of a new and splendid thing, a self-governing Province clean of that ancient curse, a drinking bar. Give us a lead, Ontario. Your younger sister, Manitoba, will surely follow; then Saskatchewan, then Alberta, then Canada. Miss not your chance. Forget party for once, and for our children's sake, fight this fight out to victory."
"Signed) Charles W. Gordon (Ralph Connor), President Social Service Council of Manitoba."

ROWELL HAS PRESSED HIS POLICY TO FRONT

There is No Dodging the Issue, He Declares

REPLIES TO CRITICISMS

Has Honestly Tried to Do His Duty—If Bars Remain Christian Temperance Men Will Prefer Party to Principle.

(Star Correspondence of The Globe.) Woodstock, June 28.—Mr. Rowell's love for the cause he espouses, and his tenacity in pleading it, were exemplified in striking fashion yesterday. The Liberal leader, under the strain of a three-weeks' exacting campaign, had voice difficulties to contend with, yet he courageously covered three meetings, and advocated his temperance policy for all he was worth to the last. Though laboring under the handicap mentioned, the Liberal leader made a fine appeal to the electors. He remarked: "There is the issue—organized Christianity, speaking through its representative synods and courts and assemblies, on the one hand, and the organized liquor traffic on the other. On Monday these two forces meet in battle array, the greatest conflict this Province has ever witnessed. All Canada is looking on, and Australia and New Zealand are looking present to the cause of Christianly win, and the bar is defeated, it means a mighty impetus to the cause of temperance throughout the world. It means a note of discouragement to the liquor workers throughout the world. No Evading the Issue."

"On which side are you going to the polls on Monday? Are you going with the liquor interests, to vote with them to save the bars, or are you going with organized Christianity, to wipe out the bars? There is no evading the issue, there is no dodging it, it is here. You have asked me to press this policy to the front. I have done it. Amid the abuse of my political opponents, the discontent of some of my political friends, I have pursued that policy for the past two and a half years. By all the ability and strength God has given me, I have sought to fairly present it to the people of Ontario. I ask you this afternoon to bear me witness—have I not tried honestly to do my duty? If the bars remain, they remain because Christian temperance men prefer party to principle and to their own lifelong practices and professions. The organized liquor interests are doing everything they can to defeat me, and to defeat this policy in the adjoining constituency. I believe their work will come to naught."

These words, spoken at a crowded meeting in the Opera House, St. Mary's, yesterday afternoon, drew forth unrestrained applause. At this meeting Mr. Rowell was supported by Mr. Arthur Hawkes, who declared that the difference between the Liberal leader and Sir James Whitney was that the latter had an abiding faith in standing still, and Mr. Rowell an

Caird Gives £24,000 to Shackleton Expedition

(Special Cable Despatch to The Globe.) London, June 28.—Sir James Key Caird, the millionaire lace manufacturer of Dundee, has donated £24,000 to Sir Ernest Shackleton for the forming of his Antarctic expedition. Caird made the gift after Shackleton had personally explained his program, which he hopes to carry out. Shackleton says the donation puts the expedition in a sound position. "Now, there is no fear that it will not start well-equipped."

The Liquor Trade Has a Sharp Knife for Rowell

Upon the letterhead of the Cosgrave Brewery Co. of Toronto, Limited, the following letter, dated June 24, and marked "CONFIDENTIAL," was received by a well-known resident of Halton county:—

"Dear Sir,
"We would esteem it a great favor by your voting against the Rowell candidate on Monday next, 29th instant for the reason that returning him to power would mean practically our financial ruin, as well as that of all the hotelkeepers of the Province, without one cent of compensation being paid by the Province or Municipality.

"This election is the most critical one in the history of the trade, and we appeal to you for your vote and influence. Please, therefore, give this your immediate and personal attention, for your active cooperation may mean a great deal in the general result.

"Yours truly,
"THE COSGRAVE BREWERY CO. OF TORONTO LIMITED."

This letter was deemed of so much significance that it was read in many of the city churches yesterday.
